

Benjamin Schnack Rasmussen

Benjamin Schnack Rasmussen is a M.D. and Ph.D. student at Odense University Hospital. He performs research within the area of medical technology and has expertise within diabetes and telemedicine with focus on the diabetic foot ulcer patient, which his thesis is focusing on. He is affiliated with the University of Southern Denmark, and the newly established Centre for Innovative Medical Technology (CIMT). Benjamin Schnack Rasmussen is part of a major technological commitment aiming at developing a number of technologies to be implemented in clinical practise (www.patientathome.dk).