

Pedro L. Pancorbo-Hidalgo (RN, BSc; PhD)

Education.

Degree in Nursing. School of Nursing of Jaén. University of Granada. Spain (1982). Bachelor in Sciences (Biology). University of Granada. Spain (1988). PhD in Biology. University of Jaén. Spain. (1996).

Experience

From 1982 to 1999 I worked as a Nurse and Unit manager of the Internal Medicine Unit at the Hospital of Jaén (Spain). Since 1996 I held different positions in the Department of Nursing, at the University of Jaén. Now, I hold the position of Professor and Head of department. My academic experience includes teaching under-graduate courses in nursing degree and graduate courses in Scientific Communication and in Systematic review methodology at Master level. I have been the supervisor of 6 PhD students (finished) and 8 PhD students with projects running. Member of the Spanish Pressure Ulcer Advisory Board from 2001. Research topics: Pressure ulcers; Evidence-based practice in nursing and healthcare

Title of presentation: The influence of organizational models on the implementation of evidence-based wound care in clinical practise